

A silent plea, a textual sigh,
A melody that can't quite fly.
Born for voice, for rhythm's art,
But copyright tore it apart.
Just words on a page, so still and stark,
A song imprisoned, leaving its mark.